newspaper accounts, it was especially interesting to see both the evolution of the facility as well as the cost of the "Poor Farm" colorful language reminiscent of the time used to describe the events and individuals associated with the "Poor Farm."

The April 7th, 1914, Martin County Sentinel stated the following: "County To Have Home For Poor." The county commissioners of that era planned for a building to be erected about three miles north of Fairmont to accommodate the less fortunate. It would be a modern building for its time, consisting of a basement, a 30 square foot cistern, and salary was $1,750.00; ina coal room. There would terest on the investment

What was Martin Counthe second floor. The first the total expenses were ty's "Poor Farm?" While inhabitants of the facility, reviewing its history in referred to as "inmates," moved in November 24th, 1915.

As time passed, the became a concern for the citizens of the county due to the expenses associated with its operation. In cost of tobacco for the inmates, which amounted to $22.75 for a fourteen month period. A 1928 newspaper article stated that the facility cost the county $4,776.00 the previous year. The breakdown of expenses shows that the "Poor Farm" costs were as follows: maintenance of the property was $4,828; the keeper's also be twelve rooms on was $2,000.00; therefore,

$8,578.00. Subtracting the $3,802.00 income determined the county's cost to be $4,776.00. The article further states that "the figures were without error because they were pronounced correct by county officials." Apparently the calculations of public offi-

However, part of the house could still be used to house poor people from the city who asked the county for living quarters. Some reasons cited for its abolishment were that "old age pensions" and other kinds of "poor aid" would take care of the current inmates. Newspaper accounts stated that fully with the girls learning the twelve inmates of the farm were properly provided for by the commissioners. The six persons over 65 would be given pensions, several more had been placed "here and there" by the commissioners, and two of the younger inmates were asked to they were to "shift for themselves" by working on farms or finding jobs in the city.

The next phase in the continuing evolution of the "Poor Farm" was in NYA 1938, when it was be- that had been ing considered as a girls' school for the NYA, National Youth Administration. The current theory of the time was that it would provide an opportunity for training in household arts, health education, social and economic problems, recreation, and individual counseling for girls from 1926, the county paid the cials were less likely to be eight counties in this part scrutinized at that time in of the state. It was set to open on January 15, 1939, with the commissioners agreeing to accept rent of $35.00 monthly. Selection of applicants was limited to girls eligible for NYA employment, in good health, able to profit from an educational program, able to adjust to group living, and who presented no unusual problems of mental or physical health. The enrollment was limited to thirty.

The school seemed to progress fairly successwashing, sewing, ironing, mending, and repair work around the house. The girls were ready for temporary placement in homes and businesses by May 15th of 1939. Their work week would consist of a maximum of ten hours, and be paid no less than twenty cents per hour.

In October of 1941, the School operation for less than two years was closed. The must be sacrificed for government military defense measures and that it was not a profitable venture. The Martin County School had twenty-five girls, and it was said by officials of the time that 70 were needed to make it a profitable project.

The building then became empty and a posed concern for the citizens of the county. One suggestion at that time was that it might be a good site for evacuees in the event large cities on either coast were bombed during WWII. Eventually, in 1943, it would become chartered as a "Youth Hostel" and would operate from May through October.

In 1949, the "Poor Farm" became the St. Joseph's Home for the Aged, a home devoted exclusively to the care of the elderly. When remodeling was completed, the facility the home and she was assisted by four Catholic Sisters. A new addition was reasons cited were that it added in 1956. In 1971. after twenty-two years, the St. Joseph Home closed its doors. The "Poor Farm" was once again empty.

In 1973, the evolution of the "Poor Farm" completed its next stage and became the Chain of Lakes Halfway House. The first director was V. H. "Rocky" Baum and it served mainly residents of Martin, Jackson, and Faribault counties.

The final chapter in the ever changing landscape of the "Poor Farm" was in 2004, when the Chain of Lakes Halfway House went out of existence. The site of the original "Poor Farm" was in operation for nearly 100 years in a variety of capacities. It changed frequently over the course of time to meet the changing needs of the residents of Martin County and of the surrounding area.

Happy Valentine's Day!

I thought todays' recipe would be perfect to make for Valentine's day but I should have submitted it last week. If you get the Photo Press early in the afternoon, it's fast and easy so maybe you could whip it up for dinner. It would be good anytime, file it away for next Valentine's day! My friend Faye Miller served this one time when I was a guest in her home. Her daughter Sheri made it for us. She used a gluten free cake mix as she is on a gluten free diet. It was delicious, but a regular cake mix would be equally good. Sheri did say that if you want it to be gluten free use pure vanilla. Years ago I made a from scratch Red Velvet cake. This is just as good and much faster to mix up. I hope that you enjoy it too.

Red Velvet Cake

1 regular size yellow cake mix

1 pkg. (3 oz.) instant vanilla pudding mix

2 Tbsp. of unsweetened cocoa powder

1 cup water

1 stick butter (1/2 cup)

3 large eggs

1 Tbsp. vanilla

3 1/4 tsp. red food coloring

Put all ingredients in a large bowl. Mix according to cake mix directions. Pour into a greased 9x13 pan, cupcake pan or 2 layer cake pan. Bake in a preheated oven at 350 degrees. 18-20 minutes for cupcakes, 25 minutes for 9x13 inch pan or until a tooth pick comes out clean.

Frosting:

18 oz. cream cheese, room temperature

1/2 stick butter, softened

3 cups powdered sugar

1 tsp. vanilla

Beat together cream cheese and butter, add vanilla, the beat in sugar until fluffy, frost cooled cake.

Have a great Valentine's day and stay warm!

3LACK CAT PARADE - Superstition, fact or coincidence? Approx 1/4th o the cats currently at the MCHS are black! There are people that due to old superstitions won't adopt a black cat. There is a belief among animal shelter people that black animals are slower to get adopted. Is it one of these reasons or is it just coincidence that out of all the colors possible among cats there just happen to be a lot of black cats at the shelter right now. We don't know, but what we do know is that they all need homes.

SABLE is the wild child of the group. He's a little over half grown and very playful. If you get too close to his cage, he will reach out and try to pull you in to play. MAMA is probably the oldest of the group. She isn't a senior, but is a more settled

SHADOW is the most timid of the group. He likes to hide under his blankets where it is nice and warm. He will come out for attention, but likes his security

ERIN & EVIE are the youngest of the group. These sisters are about 3-4 mo. old. ONYX is the "just so" guy of the group. He isn't shy, but he isn't demanding. He is playful but also cuddly. Onyx isn't a kitten, but not yet middle-aged. He is an easy-going, well balanced guy.

A FEW OF OUR DOGS AVAILABLE FOR ADOPTION:

ANDY is a friendly lab and shepherd mix. He is just under a year old and has the coloring of a darker yellow lab. He loves people and play time. ANNIE is Andy's sister, but looks much different than Andy. She has markings that are similar to a black and tan shepherd. Annie had an injury to her tail and the last third or so was amputated. She is playful and good with people.

New Tax Deduction by Jerome Gerdts, Gerdts CPA, Ltd.

deduction is taking effect in 2018 under the new tax or losses, dividends, and law, called the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act (the Act).

This deduction should provide a substantial tax benefit to individuals with "qualified business income" from a partnership, S corporation, LLC or sole proprietorship. This income is sometimes referred to as "passthrough" income.

The deduction is generally equal to 20% of your "qualified business income" (QBI) from a partnership, S corporation, or income but not your adsole proprietorship, defined as the net amount it is available regardless of is excluded from QBI. of items of income, gain, whether you itemize dededuction, and loss with ductions or take the stanrespect to your trade dard deduction. In generor business. The busi- al, the deduction cannot ness must be conducted exceed 20% of the excess within the U.S. to qualify, of your taxable income threshold amounts and

A significant new tax related items are not included, e.g., capital gains interest income (unless the interest is properly allocable to the business). The trade or business of being an employee does not qualify. Also, QBI does not include reasonable compensation received from an S corporation, or a guaranteed payment received from a partnership for services provided to a partnership's business.

The deduction is taken "below the line", i.e., it reduces your taxable justed gross income. But service trade or business and specified investment- over net capital gain. If the QBI is less than zero it is treated as a loss from a qualified business in the following year.

Rules are in place to deter high-income taxpayers from attempting to convert wages or other compensation for personal services into income eligible for the deduction.

These rules involve "thresholds", i.e. taxable income of over $157,500 ($315,000 for joint filers). If your taxable income is at least $50,000 above the threshold, i.e. it is at least $207,500 ($157,500 + $50,000), all of the net income from a specified (Joint filers would use an amount $100,000 above the $315,000 threshold). taxable incomes are between the $207,500/$415,000 amounts, the exclusion from QBI of income from specified trades or businesses involving the performance of services in the fields of health, law, consulting, athletics, financial or brokerage services, or where the principal asset is the reputation or skill of one or more employees or owners.

Additionally, for taxpayers with taxable income more than the above thresholds, there is a limitation on the amount of the deduction that is based either on wages paid or wages paid plus a capital element. Here's how it works: If your taxable income is at least $207,500 ($415,000 for joint filers), your deduction for QBI cannot exceed the greater of (1) 50% of your allocable share of the W-2 wages paid with respect to the qualified trade or business, or (2) the sum of 25% of such wages plus 2.5% of the unadjusted basis immediately after acquisition of tangible depreciable property used in the business (including real estate). For taxable incomes that are between the threshold amounts and $207,500/$415,000 amounts, a phase-in of the limitation applies.

Other limitations may apply in certain circumstances, e.g., for taxpayers with qualified cooperative dividends, qualified real estate investment trust (REIT) dividends, or income from publicly traded partnerships.

Obviously, the comsurrounding plexities this substantial new deduction can be formidable, especially if your taxable income exceeds the thresholds discussed above. If you have questions on how this tax change may affect you, contact your tax professional, who can discuss it with you.

"Well, you're only as old as you feel," I say.

"That's not true. You're only as old as you feel the day after your first exercise class."

Nature by the yard

A neighbor said that it was a good day to stay inside out of. It was blustery, but the trees of the yard did what they could the wind.

There was a hint of skunk smell in the air. As Pepe Le Pew said while swimming without an oxygen tank, "When you are a skunk, you learn how to hold your breath for a long time. "Skunks aren't true hibernators. They go into torpor. Their varied diet makes it easier for them to find food in winter when needed. Thanks to at least one being out and about, my nose experienced a fetid odor.

The feeders were being visited by a scurry of squirrels. Fox squirrels starlings called a murmu-are large squirrels. Red squirrels are not. Fox squirrels are feisty, but their feistiness puts them in the amateur ranks when compared to red squirrels. There was an encounter under a feeder. It wasn't so much a battle as it was a chase. One squirrel chased the other into a squirrel cave in the snow. The bigger animal won, but not without protest. It wasn't long before the vanquished, the red squirrel, emerged from its snowy hole, twitched its tail and scolded the victor.

I saw raccoon tracks in the snow. The word "raccoon" was adopted into English from the native Powhatan term as used in the Virginia Colony. It was recorded on Captain John Smith's list of Powhatan words as aroughcun and on William Strachey's similar list as arathkone. Either way, to offer protection from it meant "one who rubs, scrubs and scratches with its hands." The adaptability of raccoons has allowed them to thrive in urban areas.

The wind acceded to my wishes. It stopped suddenly and completely. It was cold, still and quiet as I replenished the suet in a feeder, I heard an odd whooshing sound overhead. It whooshed this way and that way. I turned this way and twisted that way in order to see the cause. It was a whirling flock of birds. A graceful movement of "Someone told me that I could tell the hunting habits of an owl by its eye color. True?" The color of an owl's eyes is a vague indicator of the time of day it prefers to hunt. It's not an accurate indicator. I've read and heard often that owls with yellow eyes hunt during the day (diurnal), owls with dark eyes hunt during the night (nocturnal) and owls with orange eyes hunt at dusk or dawn (crepuscular). As an example of the exceptions to those guidelines, barred owls have dark eyes and will hunt during the day.

'What are some popular musical groups named after birds?" This is certainly not a comprehensive list and there are some stretches, but here are a few: Black Crowes, The Byrds, Counting Crows, The Eagles, Fabulous Thunderbirds, Flock of Seagulls, The Jayhawks, the Old Crow Medicine Show, The Orioles, Charlie "Bird" Parker, The Sandpipers, Swans and The Yardbirds.

Where do native ladybugs go in winter?" The lady beetles overwinter under leaf litter, fallen tree bark, firewood and similar locations. Extremely cold temperatures, temperature fluctuations and the snow cover depth can impact their survival. The legend is that the name "ladybug" was coined by European farmers who prayed to the Virgin Mary when pests were eating

FFA Week: Full of Activities, Dress-up, and a Special Guest

By Lindsey Bettin

the 24th is National FFA Week this year. FFA Week is the time where our passionate about. These school is full of FFA pride. posters will be a chance for All FFA members lockers our school to really explore will be decorated, music what each FFA CDE, SAE, will be turned up, and our FFA family will be making memories each and every-

Throughout the week, we will have various activities going on! We are going to be doing some new activities as well. One of these new activities will be playing "Name that Tune" game, which we will play everyday and participants are all Martin County West Students, both FFA and non-FFA students.

Another new activity we will be doing is a Poster Contest. In this contest, each of our members are able to create their own poster explaining what their favorite FFA activity is all about, why they like it, how this experience will help their future careers, etc. The activity they choose may be based upon a Career Develop-

February 17th through are in, a Supervised Agricultural Experience(SAE), or anything else they feel or activity is all about while throwing a little competition in between our FFA members.

Starting off the week on a high note, all FFA members will receive a treat during lunch time on Monday! The dress up day for Monday is pajamas. On Tuesday, we will determine which "tractor brand" is MCW's favorite. In order to determine this debate, everyone is encouraged to wear their favorite tractor colors. Our FFA members will get ready to represent FFA by wearing their official dress on Thursday, or be wearing Corn Gold and National Blue colors! Friday, we will be seeing our FFA members bringing out their homegrown roots of dressing up like Rednecks!

Since each day we are dressing up to a different theme, we will have differment Event(CDE) that they ent events to go along with them. On Monday, FFA members will be able to vote on their favorite CDE poster. On Tuesday, we will kick it back with Ag Olympics during the school day. On Wednesday, the winner of the CDE poster contest will be announced. Then on Thursday, it is the early bird that gets the pancakes! Thursday is our annual pancake breakfast where FFA members and their parents, school staff, along with invited businesses/ sponsors will be able to enjoy a delicious pancake breakfast compliments of the chapter.

We also have a very special guest coming Thursday, February 22nd. She comes all the way from California just to speak to our FFA chapter and community. Our guest is the National FFA President, Breanna Holbert! As a chapter and community we have a great opportunity as she will be hosting a workshop for area officer teams at 8:15 a.m. Breanna will also be giving a keynote address at 9:05 in the MCW Jr/Sr high school gym. Please join us for this awesome opportunity!

MCW FFA Chapter is so excited for FFA Week to show our true FFA colors... so as we prepare to mingle with others, let us be diligent in labor, just in our dealings, courteous to everyone, and above all, be honest and fair in the game operators and farm businesses were satisfied with the "Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017" that was passed by Congress and enacted into law late last year. There were provisions to lower individual and corporate tax rates, provisions to extend depreciation deductions, as well as a provision to double the Federal estate tax deduction. However, as time has progressed since the implementation of the new tax law, the part of the legislation that has been garnering the most attention in agricultural circles is the new "Section 199A" provision, which creates a passthrough tax deduction for income to and from qualified business entities.

The Section 199A deduction applies to income earned by pass-through business entities, such as sole proprietorships, partnerships, S-corporations, etc. The income earned as Schedule F for Federal agricultural tax returns filed by farm businesses. The intent of including Section 199A in the recently passed tax law is to ensure that farm businesses and other business entities, which are not Ccorporations, receive similar tax benefits through the legislation as those received by the corporations. The tax law reduced the maximum tax rate for C-corporations from 35 percent to 21 percent.

The Section 199A provision also retained a deduction for cooperatives that was eliminated when the previous Section 199 was removed during the drafting of the new tax law. The provision provides a 20 percent deduction on "qualified cooperative dividends". Typically, these would be thought of as the patronage dividends by cooperatives to their membership, which will now again be covered by by these types of entities the new legislation. How-

For the most part, farm individual owners, such tives for grain and other products, which was not part of any previous tax legislation.

Under normal circumstances, if a farm operator is not cooperative, there sells grain or farm products, the farm business entity can take a 20 percent tax deduction of the net profit (gross sales minus qualified expenses) when calculating their duction would be over taxable income. This provision will still be in place under the new tax law on the proceeds for grain or agricultural products that are received from a grain warehouse, processing plant, or other farm business that is not a cooperative. However, under the new Section 199A provision, grain and agricultural products that are sold through a cooperative will receive a 20 percent tax deduction on the gross sales, rather than on the net profit. The Section 199A provision applies to grain and agricultural products sold by farm business ento the tax returns of the ments made by coopera-ships, and S-corporations, tion 199A language, citing farm business entity that

An example of how this could affect an independent grain farmer with gross sales of $500,000, total expenses of $450,000, and net income of $50,000 for a given year, would be as follows:

- If the grain is sold grain firm, processing plant, ethanol plant or livestock producer that would be a tax deduction of $10.000 ($50.000 net income times 20 percent).
- If the grain is sold through a cooperative, the total potential tax de-$100,000 ($500,000 gross sales times 20 percent), plus 20 percent of the cooperative dividend.

Many professionals in the grain industry feel that the new Section 199A provision creates an unfair incentive for cooperatives in the grain procurement industry. However, some farm organizations and others have pointed to the significant corporate tax reduction that was included in the new tax law as a major benefit to corporations that is not available to other types of business entities. Some members of Congress have been work-exceeded the intent of income level to utilize the the legislation. The twoyear budget deal recently passed by Congress did not include any provisions to correct or adjust the plant just to receive the Section 199A provision.

199A provision will be adjusted by Congress; howthat adjustment may look like, or when it will take effect. Some farm operators have been selling grain to cooperatives since January 1, 2018, which raises 2018 Federal income tax calculations: Will those grain sales qualify for the Section 199A as it now stands, or will any adjustuntil the beginning of the year? Also, what will be the impact on grain that is now being forward priced now cooperatives for fuyear? It may be a while before we know the answers to those questions.

Farm operators are encouraged not over-react to the Section 199A provision when comparing of the new Section 199A various grain bids. First tax provision on their farm of all, the potential added business for 2018 and betax deduction available yond. by selling grain through is not taxed directly; how- ever, the new legislation tities that are set up as sole ing on drafting legislation a cooperative, if it occurs ever, it is passed through also now covers the pay- proprietorships, partner- to make corrections Sec- at all, is only a benefit to a

However, tax some questions regarding experts advise caution before proceeding with restructuring farm business entities simply to adjust to the new legislation, which could be changed ments be retroactive back in the future. In addition, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) may offer some guidance or interpretation regarding taxation under the new Section 199A ture delivery later this provision. The best advice for farm operators at this point is to be patient, and to consult with a certified public accountant (CPA) or tax accountant regarding the potential impacts
